When Laura Raphael's Awesome Volunteers Extraordinaire (AVE's) showed up at South Broken Arrow Library Saturday, they had the stage all set.

The AVE's and the youth librarian, Raphael, were expecting children ages 2-5-years-old to arrive for "Meet My Pet Show & Tell."

There were so many things to choose. They could make a horse craft and/or animal mask; read a book about animals; create an animal book with stamps and crayons and add their own words; use a fishing pole to fish for prizes; vote for their favorite animal; draw their dream pet; or play the beanbag animal game.

Anna Fulton has been a library volunteer with Raphael for several years, and the other volunteers are part of the Middle Book Group at the library. They were "pumped," waiting for the children to arrive.

Zion Wing got busy drawing a water scene for the little ones who planned to fish for prizes.
