Before Peggy Helmerich was a Tulsa star for her many charitable efforts, she was a Hollywood movie star.

The film "Bright Victory," one of eight films released in 1950-51 featuring the Universal Pictures starlet then known as Peggy Dow, will screen at Circle Cinema on Dec. 1.

Arthur Kennedy and Peggy Dow (Helmerich) star in 1951's "Bright Victory." Helmerich will talk about her movie career at a pair of benefit

There will be two benefit screenings for the theater that day, with Helmerich speaking and answering audience questions after both shows.

The screenings come a few days before Tulsa Library Trust's Dec. 5 presentation of the annual Peggy V. Helmerich Distinguished Author Award to Rick Atkinson, a three-time Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist and military historian who has written extensively about World War II.

In connection with that event, Circle Cinema will show "Bright Victory," a WWII drama in which she starred opposite Oscar-nominee Arthur Kennedy, who played a soldier blinded by sniper fire in North Africa and who returns home and struggles to adjust to losing his sight.

Dow plays a woman who befriends and falls in love with Kennedy's character in the town where the U.S. Army General Hospital is located.

The film, which is not available on DVD, will screen at 2 p.m. Tuesday (with free admission for veterans) and at 7 p.m. Tickets are available for both shows online at circlecinema.com and at the theater's box office.

More information is available by calling 918-585-3456.

Tickets for these benefit screenings are $25 ($15 for Circle Cinema members) for the 2 p.m. screening on Dec. 1, and $35 ($25 for theater members) for the 7 p.m. showing that same day.
