LIBRARY CORNER

New from the Tulsa City-County Library

By Jennifer McQuade
Owasso Branch Manager

MCQUADE

Downloadable e-books and audiobooks
Every month in 2015 the Tulsa City-County Library will be featuring a library service.

This month's featured service is downloadable e-books and audiobooks. You can download free e-books and audiobooks to your tablet, computer or smart phone with a valid Tulsa City-County Library card.

You can find these items on the library website, www.tulsalibrary.org/downloads or by searching the library catalog.

The library has several ways to check out e-books and audiobooks:

Overdrive

Select from thousands of titles for use with a PC, Mac and a wide variety of mobile devices. In order to use Overdrive you need internet access, a compatible device (computer, e-reader, tablet, smart phone, etc.), free Overdrive software or you can read Overdrive books in your browser.

You can check out 10 e-books or audiobooks at a time and you can choose to keep them for either seven or 14 days.

The titles automatically expire from your device when the lending period expires or you can return them early and check out more.

There are no late fees and you can re-download the OneClick Digital app to your computer, tablet, or smart phone. The app is very user-friendly.

ComicsPlus

Get immediate access to thousands of digital graphic novels, comic books and manga that are always available. No waiting.

These items check out for seven days on your device and automatically expire. Find comics from many different publishers, including older comics like Archie and Charlie Brown.

Project Gutenberg

Select from more than 40,000 free public domain titles that never expire and don't count against your library check-out limit.

Plus, see how to self-publish your works at self.gutenberg.org. This is a great re-
