Congratulations to Tulsa City-County Library for being awarded an Oklahoma Quality Award for Pursuit of Excellence by the Oklahoma Quality Foundation.

The award recognizes Oklahoma businesses and organizations for achievement in quality, business performance and best practices. This is the first time a library has earned the honor.

We have always known the local library system was excellent, but it's nice to hear someone else agree.

With the amount of money the Tulsa County Library receives from property tax, it should be the best in the nation.

To my knowledge Tulsa county is the only county in the state that supports a library system with property taxes. And people ask why Tulsa property taxes are so high? They are high because we vote to keep them high.
