LIBRARY CORNER

Universal class: continuing your education at the library

By Jennifer McQuade
Owasso Library Manager

Are you interested in learning new things?

Are you an aspiring writer, a crafter, or an entrepreneur?

Do you have a new job or are looking for a job and need to brush up on your business skills?

Would you like to take a class on cooking, home finances, parenting skills, or gardening?

The library has many books to choose from, but you can also take classes at home for free with a valid Tulsa City-County Library card. We have a database available called Universal Class where you can find hundreds of continuing education classes.

To find Universal Class, go to www.tulsalibrary.org, find the "Research and Learn" tab and click on adult learning.

The adult learning guide features Universal Class on the right hand side. Just sign in, choose your class or classes, and start learning.

Some of the subject areas include: home and garden, office skills, home-schooling, crafts and hobbies, career training, finance, art and photography, business, and alternative medicine.

Some Universal Class descriptions:

given information on the particulars of estate planning such as how to plan for the future distribution of your assets, establish a power of attorney, create a Will in Testament and prepare a Living Will. This course will also cover trust funds, how best to incorporate charitable giving into your plan and how to take proper inventory of your current assets.

Personal Finance 101

In this course you will find everything you need to understand your spending habits, chart your progress, grow your current savings and achieve your dreams. The personal finance journey is divided into three parts: plan, execute and travel. Planning includes maintaining checking and savings accounts and creating assets. The execute section will teach you how to manage debt, build and manage your credit score as well as balance accounts for future financial security. Finally, in the travel phase you will learn to live your dream by generating wealth and controlling spending, make sound investments in stocks and bonds, and start growing retirement accounts.
