By JAMES D. WATTS JR. World Scene Writer | 0 comments

Best-selling author and journalist Roberto Suro will be in Tulsa on Thursday as part of the Tulsa City-County Library's Hispanic Heritage Month.

Suro, author of "Writing Immigration: Scholars and Journalists in Dialogue," will discuss changes in the U.S. Latino community over the past 15 years, answer questions and sign copies of his books at the event, which will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Martin Regional Library, 2601 S. Garnett Road.

Suro was the inaugural speaker when Tulsa City-County Library's Hispanic Resource Center opened in 1999.

He is also the author of "Strangers Among Us: Latino Lives in a Changing America," "Watching America's Door: The Immigration Backlash and the New Policy Debate" and "Remembering the American Dream: Hispanic Immigration and the National Policy."

Currently, he is a professor in the Annenberg School of Communication and Journalism, University of Southern California, and director of the Tomas Rivera Policy Institute, an interdisciplinary university research center exploring the challenges and opportunities of demographic diversity in the 21st-century global city.

Suro's visit is sponsored by the Tulsa Library Trust, Hispanic Resource Center, Greater Tulsa Hispanic Chamber of Commerce and Yolanda Charney, with additional assistance provided by the Mary K. Chapman Foundation and George Kaiser Family Foundation.

For more information on Suro's visit or other Hispanic Heritage Month activities, call 918-549-7323 or go to tulsalibrary.org.
