

Library program can help with homework

September 25, 2014

To assist families in helping students achieve their potential, Tulsa City-County Library presents the After-School Homework Club @ Your Library."

This partnership between Tulsa City-County Library and AmeriCorps offers assistance to third- and eighth-grade students in completing their homework assignments.

The 2014-15 school year marks the third year for Tulsa City-County Library to offer the After-School Homework Club @ Your Library. Community volunteers also assist by providing their professional expertise in the core subjects.

"Any student who attends a public or charter school in Tulsa County can sign up at one of the clubs," said Fidelia Gonzales, Tulsa City-County Library's AmeriCorps site supervisor. "The After-School Homework Clubs offer one-on-one homework assistance to help students gain a better understanding of their school courses. It also is a great opportunity to highlight the many services Tulsa City-County Library has to offer for students."

Appointments will be scheduled in 35-minute blocks for each student. Choose from convenient times and register at one of these After-School Homework Clubs, Monday-Thursday, 3:15-5:50 p.m.:

- Martin Regional Library, 2601 S. Garnett Road. A Friday session at s available at this location only.
- Maxwell Park Library, 1313 N. Canton
- Nathan Hale Library, 6038 E. 23rd St.
- South Broken Arrow Library, 3600 S. Chestnut
- Suburban Acres Library, 4606 N. Garrison

To further engage students in learning opportunities, "Education Activity Centers" for group a presented at three Tulsa City-County Libraries. Registration is required to participate in the I Activity Centers. Participants will enjoy STEAM-focused, planned academic learning activit libraries:

- Brookside Library, 1207 E. 45th Place, Tuesday and Thursday, 3:15-
- Rudisill Regional Library, 1520 N. Hartford, Tuesday and Thursday, p.m.
- Zarrow Regional Library, 2224 W. 51st St., Monday and Wednesday p.m.

Tulsa City-County Library also offers Homework HelpNow, online access to expert instructio collaboration and self-study. The service is ideal for kindergarten to adult learners. All a stu library card to connect from home, school or any Tulsa City-County Library location.

Homework HelpNow has live tutors available 2 to 11 p.m., seven days a week for help with n writing, science, social studies, reading comprehension, English literature and Spanish.

Also, sessions may be conducted in Spanish or English.

All Homework HelpNow tutors are certified by Brainfuse online tutoring workshop and have degrees with prior teaching and tutoring experience.

For more information, call 918-549-7667 or visit www.tulsalibrary.org/homeworkclub.

To assist families in helping students achieve their potential, Tulsa City-County Library presents School Homework Club @ Your Library."

News | News Briefs

« Feds contact ODOH over Ebola readiness - OU heads to West Virginia after decisive Ter

© 2014 Tulsa Beacon