LIBRARY CORNER

Summer Reading Program ends Aug. 2

By Jennifer McQuade
Youth Librarian

Resident have only one week left to participate in the Summer Reading Program at the library.

The program officially ends Aug. 2. After that day, we will not sign up any new participants, but we will still be handing out medals, coupons and prizes throughout the month of August for kids who have finished reading all their books.

Tonight at the Owasso Library, come dance, sing, and shake your sillies out with us.

Parents and children ages 5 and younger are invited to a fun, interactive music and motion program at 6 p.m. July 24. We will listen to live piano and guitar and play our own musical instruments. No registration required for this program.

Don't forget to use your coupons for free admission to Library Summer Reading nights at ONEOK Field with the Tulsa Drillers at 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 2, and at the BOK Center with the Tulsa Shock at 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 8.

Meet author Jack Gantos, winner of the 2014 Anne V. Zarrow award for young readers' literature, at Hardesty Regional Library's Connor's Cove, 8316 E. 93rd St., at 7 p.m. Aug. 22.

Jack Gantos is being recognized for writing more than 40 books for children, teens and adults. In 2012, he received the John Newbery Medal for his book novel explores a society in the near future. Children are beginning to have difficulty speaking and comprehending language. Some say the children have a handicap and some say they have a gift. These children are labeled "The Silents" and as more are born unable to speak, parents, teachers, and society struggle with the true meaning of communication, disability, and humanity.

The Mark of the Dragonfly by Jaleigh Johnson

Piper is an orphan on a damaged planet surviving on her almost magical ability to repair scavenged items. She finds a mysterious girl who can't remember anything about her past but has the "mark of the dragonfly", an intricate tattoo. Piper knows the tattoo means she will be rewarded if she can return the girl to her home. The girls embark on a magical journey across a vivid land-
