LIBRARY CORNER

Summer Reading program winding down, blood drive set July 21

By Jennifer McQuade
 Youth Librarian

There are only two weeks left to participate in the Summer Reading Program at the library.

Children read eight books and visit the library four times to receive a book of coupons for free food and activities and a medal.

Read an additional 12 books and you will receive a light-up foam baton. Tweens and teens only need to read six books to receive their coupon book and a lava pen.

Adults can participate too. Just read four books and complete a short online survey to receive a coupon for a free bagel at Panera Bread and be entered into a drawing for great prizes, including kindle e-readers.

We are planning some fun events for the last two weeks of Summer Reading at the Owasso Library.

On Thursday, July 17, bring the family for a fun building experience at 6 p.m. Families will work together to complete Teens and tweens ages 10 and up are invited to explore the strange and fascinating world of Cold-thorn the Mentalist at 3 p.m. Wednesday, July 23. No registration is required for this program.

It's time to dance, sing and shake your sillies out at the library. Parents and children ages 5 and younger are invited to a fun, interactive music and motion program at 6 p.m. Thursday, July 24.

We will listen to live piano and guitar and play our own musical instruments. No registration required for this program.

Adult Fiction

Goodnight June by Sarah Jio

Do you remember reading Goodnight Moon to your children before bed? Goodnight June tells the story of June Anderson, a workaholic living in New York who inherits a bookstore in Seattle from her great-aunt. The bookstore specializes in children's books, and June has no intention of keeping the bookstore until she finds a letter and realizes her spanning different centuries, writing styles and subject matter. The process encourages discussion on the lives of women and writers, how we categorize fiction, how the library selects and discards books, and the changes occurring in the publishing world. An enjoyable, interesting journey for lovers of books, reading and libraries.

Juvenile Fiction

Rose by Holly Webb

The first of a new series set in Victorian London, this book will appeal to young Harry Potter fans. Rose is living at the St. Bridget's School for Abandoned Girls when she is chosen to work in the household of a famous alchemist. She soon discovers a world of magic exists in the house and a special ability of her own. When some of her friends from the orphanage go missing, will Rose be able to solve the mystery? Recommended for ages 9-12.
