Harry Potter New Year's Bash

Start 2019 in a wizardly way at Central Library's second annual Harry Potter New Year's Bash, celebrating all things Hogwarts. Take part in a live owl demonstration, find out your Hogwarts house, create magical crafts and much more. You'll bring home your own Hogwarts acceptance letter, House tie and magic wand. This year's bash will feature an enchanted photo booth, trivia, a magician, plus costume contests for adults, children and teens. Registration is required to attend; live owl demonstrations, at 5:45 p.m. and 6:15 p.m., require separate registration because of limited seating. The event will be held from 5:30-8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 4, at Central Library, Fifth Street and Denver Avenue. To register, call 918-549-7323, or go to events.tulsalibrary.org.

Tulsa Symphony Orchestra

Music inspired by distinctly nonmusical items is the common link among the three works that will be performed by the Tulsa Symphony Orchestra for its first Classics concert of the new year. The program includes the Overture from Mozart's final opera, "The Magic Flute," which drew its inspiration in part from Masonic rituals; selections from the ballet score of "Romeo & Juliet" by Prokofiev, perhaps the most popular and effective musical incarnation of Shakespeare's romantic tragedy; and "Impressions from The Garden of Cosmic Speculation," a large-scale composition by the contemporary composer Michael Gandolfi. The performance is at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 5, at the Tulsa PAC. Tickets are $15-$70 and are available by calling 918-584-3645, or at tulsasymphony.org.

Golden Globes watch party

Circle Cinema will host its annual Golden Globes Viewing Party at 7 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 6. Theatre Tulsa Managing Director Jarrod Kopp will host the event, which will include trivia and prizes during commercial breaks. The Red Carpet Arrival Special begins at 6 p.m. in the Circle Cinema gallery, where attendees can enjoy snacks while filling out their ballots as the stars of film and television arrive in Beverly Hills for the Golden Globe Awards. The event is free for Circle Cinema members and $5 for nonmembers. For more information, visit circlecinema.org.

Arvest Winterfest

The 11th annual Arvest Winterfest continues outside the BOK Center, 200 S. Denver Ave. The popular outdoor festival runs through Sunday, Jan. 6, and features a 9,000-square-foot ice rink and a new Winterfest Express Train. A new on-site food truck, the Bandwagon, will be serving holiday-themed food and drinks. Ice skating is $12, including skate rental, and $8 for kids 3 and younger. For more, tulsawinterfest.com.

Garden of Lights

For something entirely new this holiday season, the Tulsa Botanic Garden, 3900 Tulsa Botanic Drive, is hosting its first Garden of Lights, featuring displays of lights and holiday decorations from the elegant to the whimsical. Warm beverages and s'mores kits will be available, with fire pits set up for roasting marshmallows. Tickets are $15 for adults, and pre-purchasing is recommended. The event runs through Sunday, Jan. 6. For more, go to tulsabotanic.org.

'Book of Mormon'

Celebrity Attractions will bring "The Book of Mormon," the Tony Award-winning musical created by Trey Parker and Matt Stone ("South Park," "Team America – World Police") and Robert Lopez ("Avenue Q," "Frozen"), back to the Tulsa PAC. A few missionary mix-ups send Elder Price and his fellow evangelical emissary, the nerdy and needy Elder Cunningham, to a particularly nasty corner of Uganda, where war, famine, pestilence and death are the order of the day. The only way to cope with life is to sing and shout profane curses at the sky and whoever might be up there. While much of the show's humor is aimed at organized religion, "The Book of Mormon" is also a send-up of the musical genre itself, with scenes that spoof elements of such shows as "The Lion King," "Annie," "The Sound of Music," "42nd Street" and "Wicked." Performances begin Tuesday, Jan. 8, and run through Jan. 13. For tickets and more information, call 918-596-7111 or go online to tulsapac.com.
