Every Wednesday morning, you can find Luther and Lori Pilant at the Jenks Library where they bring their granddaughters, Sophie, age 4, and Addilyn, age 2, to the Build A Reader Storytime to listen to fun stories, sing songs, play with new friends and check out books to read at home. Like many Jenks Library customers, the Pilants are big readers and they want to inspire a love of reading in their grandchildren too.

“... the Jenks Library strives to reflect that friendly small-town feeling while also connecting the people to a large library system ...”

Aaron, age 5, and Abi, age 7, recently visited the Jenks Library to attend a PAWS for Reading event, where they got to read to Josie, a registered therapy dog, and meet her owner, Denise Graham. The siblings' mom, Christen Robinson, said they live in Broken Arrow but frequently like to go to other Tulsa City-County Library locations, such as the Jenks Library, to attend free events, such as this PAWS program. “My daughter loves reading to the dogs as it takes the pressure off of reading and helps her build confidence. My son who is a prereader likes to participate too. And now the best part of all is that they are reading to each other at home!”

“Even with its explosive growth, Jenks has always maintained a small-town charm that our residents love,” said Newman. “And the Jenks Library strives to reflect that friendly small-town feeling while also connecting the people to a large library system with all the perks that come with it.”

Jenks Library: A Reading Community

“The Jenks community is one that loves to read,” said longtime Jenks Library manager Cheryl Newman. “When parents come in to check out books for their family, they don’t just grab one book per person. Instead, it isn’t unusual to see each member of the family lifting their own personal stack of reading material to take home for the day!”

With an excellent school system, easy commute to work and abundant amenities, such as the RiverWalk, Oklahoma Aquarium and Village on Main, Jenks is one of the fast-growing cities in Oklahoma.

As Jenks continues to grow with new housing and retail establishments cropping up in and around town, Newman said plans are in development to build a larger library on Main Street so that the Jenks Library can remain a vital source of information for the community and provide even more materials to meet the demand of this book-loving town.

Currently located on the corner of B and Elm streets, the Jenks Library is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Ongoing programming includes Build A Reader Storytime/Stay and Play for families every Wednesday at 10:30 a.m.; PAWS for Reading for elementary students on the first Tuesday of the month at 4 p.m.; and Jenks Library Book Discussion Group for adults on the third Thursday of the month at 1:30 p.m. No programming is offered in August though as the staff take a break after the Summer Reading Program to gear up for the beginning of school.
