COVID RISK LEVELS

TCCL is following the Tulsa Health Department's (THD) guidance regarding COVID risk levels as it relates to our programs. THD updates risk levels weekly for each zip code located within Tulsa County. TCCL will list the color-coded risk level on the door of each library for public guidance. TCCL will adjust programming based on these risk levels. Color codes and programming adjustments are listed below. If you have questions or would like to check your library's zip-code COVID risk, contact Customer Care at 918-549-7323.

COLOR CODES

-  Green or Yellow = no programming changes
-  Orange = programming moved outside or room capacity limited and everyone over age 5 must wear a mask to participate
-  Red = program canceled or moved to virtual

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

If hard of hearing or sight impaired, contact Customer Care at 918-549-7323 or askus@tulsalibrary.org for accommodations 48 hours in advance of the program.

IT TAKES A LANGUAGE AND A CULTURE TO MAKE A TRIBE

*Preserving American Indian
Heritage*

According to the Indigenous Language Institute, there once were more than 300 native languages spoken in the United States. Today, however, only about 175 remain and most of them are nearly extinct.

“It has been said that it takes a language and a culture to make a tribe,” said Teresa Runnels, coordinator of Tulsa City-County Library’s American Indian Resource Center (AIRC). “Many native languages are in danger of dying out because of the declining native-speaker population. Native people know that we are all about one generation from losing our language and one generation from losing our arts. That is why it is so important for us to learn our native languages and arts now so that we can teach them to our children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and pass on our heritage to the next generation.”

As coordinator of the AIRC, Runnels oversees a collection of more than 4,000 books, periodicals, and media for adults and children by and about American Indians, including historical and rare materials, new releases, films and music with a focus on native languages.

>> Teresa Runnels and Katie Thompson at the American Indian Resource Center

Nestled in the northern corner of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation Reservation, the AIRC resides at the Zarrow Regional Library in west Tulsa. As the only center of its kind in the state, the AIRC is vital to Oklahoma's 39 tribal nations.

"We are one of only two centers in public libraries across the nation that provides cultural, educational and informational resources, activities and services highlighting American Indian culture," said Runnels. "We strive to keep all of our programming traditional but make it relevant to today's society."

In an effort to revitalize native languages, the AIRC offers free language classes in Kiowa, Yuchi and Shawnee. An online Cherokee language course also is available, thanks to the collaboration of the AIRC, Cherokee Nation and Mango Languages. TCCL customers can use their library card to access the free Cherokee course on Mango Languages at www.tulsalibrary.org/programs-and-services/online-learning.

"Tribal languages are the key to access to an entire world of indigenous knowledge," said Runnels, who is Sac and Fox, Muscogee, Shawnee, Caddo and Delaware. "The language opens the door to tribal histories, literature, cultures, medicinal knowledge and more."

In addition to native language revitalization, cultural revitalization also is essential to preserving American Indian heritage. Prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, the AIRC offered in-person Native Cultural Arts programs featuring in-depth workshops on American Indian arts, such as making traditional moccasins and native patchwork. A variety of people from different tribes would attend and some would travel from towns outside of TCCL's service area, Runnels said.

Katie Thompson, director of the Sac and Fox Nation's Sauk Language Department and interim director of the Sac and Fox National Public Library, participated in the AIRC's Native Cultural Arts: Seminole Patchwork series in 2018.

"As I am not the best sewer, I was terrible at it, but I learned a lot from the class," said Thompson, who is Sac and Fox. "I really liked that all the materials were provided and that there were skilled people there each week to work one on one with us as we learned the different stages of making native patchwork."

Thompson was so impressed with the AIRC's Native Cultural Arts series that they replicated it at the Sac and Fox Nation.

"After we participated in the Seminole Patchwork class, we thought about some of the cultural things we offer to our tribal members through our language department – like finger weaving, and making ribbon shirts and moccasins – and how we could design our classes to be like the ones you offer through the American Indian Resource Center," Thompson said.

>> Teresa Runnels with the Rev. Archie Mason, Circle of Honor inductee, and Lillian Williams, retired resource advisor, Tulsa Public Schools Indian Education Office

"I think the Native Cultural Arts programs are important for our native communities because they enable us to connect crafters and artists with people willing to learn. They also give everyone a space where we all feel comfortable learning and asking questions and forming relationships between elders and youth," she said.

In addition to the Native Cultural Arts classes, Thompson said she is appreciative of the AIRC's American Indian Festival of Words, which takes place every March.

"It is good to have the camaraderie with other tribes and to come together and discuss similar issues and share possible solutions to help each other," Thompson said.

The highlight of this year's festival is the Circle of Honor Ceremony. On Saturday, March 5 at 10:30 a.m., Tulsa City-County Library will induct the Rev. Archie Mason, Osage and Cherokee, into the Circle of Honor at a virtual ceremony. Mason was an educator for 34 years and one of the longest-serving members of the Osage Nation Congress. Induction into the Circle of Honor is a celebration of the honoree's actions in the face of adversity, commitment to the preservation of American Indian culture and legacy for future generations. You can watch the ceremony on TCCL's YouTube channel at www.youtube.com/tulsalibrary.

The festival also will feature a virtual Native Cultural Arts: Traditional Flute Making program, viewable

March 7-31 on TCCL's YouTube channel. Choogie Kingfisher will share the history of the Kituwah Cherokee-style flute and demonstrate how to make one.

"By offering programs like the American Indian Festival of Words, Native Americans see the library as a gathering place for them," said Runnels. "As coordinator, my job is to educate, and the purpose of the center is to provide resources to Native people to learn about their cultures and to educate the greater community that American Indians are not all one group but many tribes with different cultures."

Want to trace your American Indian ancestry?

START HERE! >>

Documenting American Indian heritage requires thorough research. The Five Tribes living in Oklahoma – Cherokee, Choctaw, Chickasaw, Muscogee and Seminole – developed a relationship with the U.S. government long before other tribes. Because of this longstanding relationship, tribal records exist for most of the 19th century. These records are available through TCCL's Genealogy Resource Center and can be used to discover and document your American Indian heritage.

- Records of the Five Tribes, dating from the 1830s to around 1910s, include census records, rolls, applications, accounts of legislative sessions, court dockets, correspondence, election records, treasurer records, materials relating to land allotment and leases, and school records.
- The 1900 Federal Census can help you determine whether your ancestor was listed on the Dawes Roll, and the Final Dawes Roll Index can help you locate your ancestor's tribe and enrollment information. Search your ancestor's Dawes enrollment information in the Fold3 Database, accessible to TCCL cardholders only at the Genealogy Center.
- Resources like Finding Your American Indian Ancestors Research Guide, a historical timeline of the Five Tribes and more can help you conduct your research.

Start your research online at www.tulsalibrary.org/research/genealogy-center/american-indian-research or in person at the Genealogy Center, located at Hardesty Regional Library.

Nuevos títulos en español para niños

Celebrando el mes de la historia de la mujer

Por Ana Davis, asistente bilingüe de servicio al cliente, Biblioteca Regional Martin

Durante el mes de marzo, se celebra el Día Internacional de la Mujer y también el Mes de la Historia de la Mujer, y en este año 2022 celebraremos a las latinas más destacadas en el ámbito de la literatura hispana. Uno de mis primeras escritoras de ficción que leí fue Elena Poniatowska, y fue su libro de Tinísima. De ahí le siguió Sandra Cisneros La casa en la calle Mango, estas dos escritoras latinas son mis preferidas.

En los tiempos que gran parte a su diversidad cultural, publicar libros en inglés escritos por autores latinos y con protagonistas latinos parece cada vez más necesario, y si estos autores son mujeres, todavía mejor, dar voz a las autoras

>> CONTINÚA

>> Autoras Elena Poniatowska, Sandra Cisneros, Ingrid Rojas Contreras y Valeria Luiselli.

Aunque las mujeres han progresado, todavía hay áreas donde las mujeres enfrentan obstáculos debido a su género.

latinas que están transformando el mundo de las letras puede ayudar a combatir los prejuicios y desigualdades de género enraizados en la sociedad, y especialmente en la comunidad latina.

Me gustaría hablar sobre La fruta del borrachero de Ingrid Rojas Contreras, quien nació y creció en Bogotá, Colombia. Su primera novela fue ganadora de la medalla de plata en First Fiction de los California Book Awards y elegida por el editor del New York Times, así como Valeria Luiselli. En el 2020 Valeria fue la escritora elegida para la celebración del mes de la herencia hispana con el Centro Hispano.

El libro de Valeria, Los niños perdidos, es un ensayo basado en entrevistas que ella realizó a estos pequeños como traductora voluntaria a niños latinoamericanos que buscan asilo en los Estados Unidos y que fueron detenidos en la frontera en el 2014, es una reflexión de las circunstancias que los llevaron a inmigrar. No es la primera escritora latinoamericana que escribe acerca de este tema, en los últimos años estas historias se han hecho más presentes en la literatura hispana.

Aunque las mujeres han progresado, todavía hay áreas donde las mujeres enfrentan obstáculos debido a su género. Por ejemplo, las mujeres aún ganan menos en promedio, asumen la mayoría de las responsabilidades del hogar y el cuidado de los niños, enfrentan estigmas y dobles raseros en el lugar de trabajo, y casi no están representadas en el liderazgo ejecutivo, las carreras STEM y la política. Además, existe la violencia doméstica, el acoso sexual, la trata y la cultura de la violación. Ah, y el sesgo de contratación, los estándares de belleza dañinos y el impuesto rosa. ¿Tenemos que seguir?

The House on Mango Street

es la extraordinaria historia de Esperanza Cordero. Contado a través de una serie de viñetas —a veces desgarradoras, a veces profundamente alegres— es el relato de una niña latina que crece en un barrio de Chicago, inventando por sí misma en qué y en quién se convertirá.

La Fruta del Borrachero

Un debut fascinante situado en Colombia durante la violencia devastadora de los años 90 sobre una joven protegida y una empleada doméstica adolescente, quienes inician una improbable amistad que amenaza con deshacerlas a ambas.

Los Niños Perdidos (Lost Children Archive)

"Imposiblemente inteligente, lleno de belleza, corazón y perspicacia... Todo el mundo debería leer este libro." - Tommy Orange

Del dos veces finalista de NBCC, una nueva novela emocionalmente resonante y ferozmente imaginativa sobre una familia cuyo viaje por carretera a través de Estados Unidos choca con un Crisis de inmigración en la frontera suroeste: un viaje indeleble contado con imágenes impresionantes, lirismo sobrio y una humanidad profunda.

La Biblioteca de la Ciudad-Condado de Tulsa incorporará al Rev. Archie Mason, Osage y Cherokee, al Círculo de Honor de los Indios Americanos. Mason fue educador durante 34 años y uno de los miembros con más años de servicio en el Congreso de la Nación Osage. La inducción al Círculo de Honor es una celebración de las acciones del homenajeado frente a la adversidad, el compromiso con la preservación de la cultura indígena americana y el legado para las generaciones futuras.

Ratonauta
 por Mark Kelly

El astronauta Mark Kelly voló con “ratonautas” en su primer vuelo espacial a bordo del transbordador Endeavour en 2001. Ratonauta cuenta la historia de un ratoncito que lo que más quiere es viajar al espacio exterior.

En Realidad, Es Yefferson
 por Katherine Trejo y Scott Martin-Rowe

En su primer día como el chico nuevo en la escuela, el nombre del tímido Yefferson se pronuncia mal constantemente para su incomodidad y vergüenza. Con el apoyo de su familia, Yefferson encuentra el coraje para defenderse a sí mismo y a su tocayo.

El Libro de Los Sentimientos
 por Todd Parr

Este libro tiene que ver con los sentimientos. A veces me siento valiente. A veces tengo ganas de bailar. A veces me siento de mal humor. A veces tengo ganas de llorar.

Paz
 por Baptise Paul y Miranda Paul

Desde un hola y pronunciar correctamente el nombre de tu amigo hasta dar más de lo que recibes y decir lo siento, este sencillo libro conceptual explora definiciones de paz y acciones pequeñas y grandes que la fomentan.

Tigre, ¿dónde estás?
 por DK

¡Bienvenido a la jungla! Deje que su pequeño explorador emprenda un viaje a través del bosque cálido y húmedo para localizar al tigre que rara vez se ve.
